

Western Canada Airways Achieves Remarkable Record Transporting Freight In North

Announcement has been made that the Western Canada Airways Ltd. has set a new record for the head office and principal base operations during this summer, has under consideration the moving of headquarters from The Pas to Winnipeg, Manitoba. This change has not been definitely made.

This company has achieved a remarkable record in aerial transportation during its first season. Hundreds of passengers and a large amount of freight has been transported over the north country without a mishap of any description and without the loss of a single pound of freight.

A notable example of the aerial work of the company was the journey of the superintendent, Major G. A. Thompson, from The Pas to Winnipeg to Fort Churchill for passenger and return within the same day. Early in June after the mail had been laid on the Flin Flon railway to Cranberry-Portage and passengers and freight began to be delivered to that point, the successful operation of a sub-base there and from that point the largest number of passengers and greatest tonnage of freight has been handled.

Besides trips to Chesterfield Inlet and Fort Churchill many chartered trips have been made with passengers from The Pas to many other points in the north, including Deer Lake, Port Nelson and Lac la Poudre, but the principal business has been from Cranberry-Portage which base was established for the regular freight business of the company.

During two weeks from the base at Cranberry-Portage nearly 5 tons of freight and approximately 100 passengers were transported to Cole Lake and return.

This great volume of business has been handled by three Fokker Universal planes, the largest one of which has a carrying capacity of 1,000 pounds and the others of 800 each. The successful operation of these planes has been due largely to the efficient pilots who are in the employ of the company. Those who are assisting Major Thompson are Mr. Brown and Capt. H. H. Kenyon. Those who estimated that they have arrived during the season so far upwards of seven hundred passengers. Operations will be suspended until after freeze-up, which is expected to be about the middle of November. During this suspension the planes will be brought to The Pas and overhauled and the pistons removed and skids substituted. This will give the planes three hundred pounds additional carrying capacity.

Why James A. Garfield decided to attend Williams College.

An Ohio historian, J. H. Galbraith, has discovered the reason why James A. Garfield attended Williams College when he had been undecided whether to matriculate there, at Yale or at Brown. He addressed letters of inquiry to the presidents of all three, receiving the usual conventional replies, but with one important difference. His answer from the ever-famous Mark Hopkins, of Williams, added the cordial line: "We shall be glad to do what we can for you." Impressed by the courtesy of this response, the future president of the United States decided to go to Williams.

One Of World's Wonders

Curious Growth On Admiralty Island
On the north shore of Admiralty Island, lying between the mainland and Vancouver Island, the misty water-laden fog from the Japan current has the effect of producing a growth of moss, declared by scientists to be one of the natural wonders of the northwest.

The cedarlog growth starts on the drooping boughs of hemlock and spruce and continues to grow perennially. Specimens of this moss twenty feet long and four feet wide at the point of contact with the branch have been found. These blackened growths of moss are so luxuriant and rank as to darken the forests along the shore of the island. Where spruce overhangs reaching the sea and extends many feet into the bays and tide-waters.

Tourists viewing the island from steamers report this moss hanging in long blacklets from forest trees giving the impression of many Indian wigwags erected among them. Recent experiments with this kind of freely growing moss indicate that it has medicinal properties as does the swamp or sphagnum, widely used as surgical dressing in the world war.

Common Cold Often Leads To More Serious Disease

A warning against ignoring the common cold has been issued by the medical officers of health for Toronto. Dr. C. J. O. Hastings, "The common cold and its complications," he says, "constitute the most costly and most fatal group of diseases that we have to contend with during the winter season. More than 70 per cent. of all absence from our schools and colleges is due to sickness, and more than 25 per cent. of this is due to common cold and over 40 per cent. of all absence from school during the winter months is due to the respiratory diseases."

Japan To Build Dirigible

Japanese navy officials have completed plans for the construction of a new giant airship which will carry guns and bombs, and have a cruising radius of 3,000 miles, the Tokyo correspondent of the Evening News reported. When finished, the dirigible will be by far the largest in the Far East, it was said. Construction of the ship is expected to begin soon.

Measuring Time By Bell

Method Was In Use Many Centuries Ago

Residents on this continent who are fortunate enough to own specially designed radio sets can, if they please, regulate the course of their daily life and their social engagements by Westminster's famous clock tower. Every day the chime of the bell, hung high above the House of Parliament and struck on the 15th of the month, is broadcast to the world by an English firm. Transmitted at the incredible speed of the radio waves, it reaches listeners on this continent in less than a second of time than it does the crowds on the streets of London. While enjoying the novelty, or catching the distant sound and setting their time-keepers thereby with the requisite allowance for the difference between local and London time, few listeners pause to recall that they are combining both ancient and ultra-modern methods of ordering their daily affairs.

Among the most venerable of associations is that of the bell with the measurement of time. Early in ancient history, the bell began to be employed as a summons to the signal. The bell summoned the Roman soldiers to arms and the Roman citizens to the senate chamber—it so identified itself with the Christian faith as a signal for prayer or as a summons to the place of worship that the church bell has remained an integral part of ecclesiastical architecture. The Angelus, the Ave Marie, the vespers bell and the curfew are but a few of the bells ringing out at fixed hours of the day and serving at once their own definite purpose and as an announcement of time intervals.

Though modern life no longer depends upon the bell, and modern ideas are apt to drown its vibrations, the bell retains its romantic associations and sentimental value. How strong these are is indicated by the interest displayed in the chime of Big Ben as delivered by radio.

Making Good In Canada

British Immigrant Out Only Three Years Back Half Section Of Land

Had is more or less a matter of that God, and in a similar manner one hears more often of the failure of the British immigrant and his family or the more recent British farmers in their attempts to make good on the farms of the Western provinces. But every once in a while comes a tale of success.

William V. Evans came out from Hencord, South Wales, some three years ago with his young wife, to find work in the much-heralded Dominion of Canada, where, between snowfalls, golden wheat grew up and made everyone a millionaire in no time. Soon after their arrival the Evans found work on a farm. The work was hard and very hard for a time, but they soon began to gain more experience and with this came confidence in themselves that enabled them to take on more responsible and more lucrative positions.

Now, three years after landing in Canada, Mr. Evans, still a young man with only 24 years behind him, has purchased a fully equipped half-section of land, together with several hundred head of stock. This farm is eight miles north of Horizon, and has the unique record of growing number one Northern wheat for eight years in a row.

Mr. Evans is sure that he "will make a go of it," and points with pride to his wife, who is a farmer's daughter of farmstead, with her ability to drive a six-horse combination or engage in the numerous duties of a farmer's wife. And then there is his little daughter, who expresses the spirit of their new homeland in her bright, quick and cheery outlook on life.

Mr. Evans has already written in his home in Wales, where he has a number of relatives and friends, he hopes to induce to come out to Saskatchewan, which he terms a land of the practical optimist.

Britain Buys Our Cheese

87 Per Cent. Of Exportable Surplus Last Year Shipped To United Kingdom

Eighty-seven per cent. of Canada's export of cheese last year was shipped to the United Kingdom—amounting being 119,000,000 pounds—according to J. J. A. Rudick, dairy and cold storage commissioner for the Dominion, who recently returned from an extensive tour of the British market centers. The Canadian grading commission had gained the confidence of the British importing trade, Dr. Rudick, and the largest operation in cheese in the whole world, he said, had been brought to Canada but depended entirely upon grade marks and the grade's certificate.

Just One Course

"When you sit down to pack in the food for the Central or lower Arctic," said Bertram L. Frodly, in a reminiscent mood, "you look for the menu and find 'they' haven't none." But the chocolate膏 standing at your back, says softly into your ear—"As he places a cup of hot coffee at your right." "How?" you have "y'ham en sign." It is in some parts of the Central or Southern States. Where I was compelled to spend a night, it was somewhat different. "You asked 'very decidedly' 'Soul' said."

"I did not look up for I expected a letter from my mother to tell me that just replied casual like. 'No, I don't care for soup.'"

"Dinnah's ovah," said the waiter.

"Dinnah worry yersel," replied Sandy, "yer no' gain the start now."

Put it in reverse gear now, George, I want to go home.

Negotiations carried on by the wheat pools of Western Canada for some months past in connection with the sampling of grain for government inspection have led to the installation of automatic samplers at the Saskatchewan wheat pool terminals number four, five, six, seven and eight at the Head of the Lakes.

After thorough testing of the automatic samplers by the pool inspection department, they were carefully checked over by the Dominion government inspection department, and the chief inspector has agreed to recognize samples taken by the automatic samplers as official samples taken at unaloud.

Consequently a sample will now be retained at the Head of the Lakes, or all cars of Saskatchewan pool grain unloaded at Saskatchewan Pool terminals, and these samples will be available for re-inspection purposes without the necessity of the grain being re-inspected, or in the case of "held full cars," so that growers who are not advised of Winnipeg grades promptly enough to have their grain course of events to give for re-inspection at "unloaded" before the car is actually unloaded, will now be protected by the retaining of samples of all pool cars for some time after arrival.

The improvement in the sampling system is a result of the work of the inter-provincial grading committee appointed some months ago as representative of the three wheat pools of Western Canada. The committee has under consideration various other matters looking toward the general improvement of the grading system from the point of view of the grower.

Factories On the Prairie

Western Canada Becoming An Attractive Field For Industrial Enterprise

Factories are beginning to dot the prairies of Western Canada. The process of industrialization which has gone on in other lands is noticeable in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. In these provinces, usually regarded as purely agricultural, there are now 2,210 factories, with an invested capital of $253,557,272. The employees number 36,436; the annual wage bill is $46,170,949, and the value of manufactured products $163,292,180.

Manitoba leads the three prairie provinces in the volume of its manufacturing industry, with an annual output of $132,718,452. Alberta follows with $83,425,631, and Saskatchewan is third with $47,108,087.

Four mills contribute a large share of the total production, with an annual value of $51,113,138. Slaughtering and meat packing follows with $33,085,850. Butter and cheese account for $23,452,378. These industries are the natural outcome of farm production. More remarkable are items like these: Railway rolling stock, $10,286,727; electric light and power, $12,262,162; bags, cotton and jute, $5,077,484; petroleum products, $8,424,434.

With increasing prosperity and increasing farm production Western Canada, as the figures disclose, is becoming an attractive field for industrial enterprise.

Canadian Club Activities

Extension Of Speakers' Itineraries Is Planned At Ottawa Meeting

Extension of speakers' itineraries for Canadian club enlargement of the Canadian Club Magazine, radio programmes, and organization policy were discussed at Ottawa, at the first meeting this autumn of the executive committee of the Association of Canadian Clubs. C. G. Cowan, of Ottawa, was re-elected chairman of the executive.

Miss Katherine Evans, formerly of Winnipeg, was appointed to the permanent staff of the association. She is a daughter of W. Sanford Evans, T.L.A., one of the two founders of the Canadian Club movement.

The executive issued instructions to the national office to arrange 1,000 meetings for the 120 Canadian clubs in the Dominion and discussed the use of the radio for broadcasting Canadian club addresses and concerts. A National Canadian Club Radio committee will be appointed at the next executive meeting to make arrangements for the broadcasting.

London Solves Garbage Problem

Cars Are Sunk Into Concrete Pit In Garden

To sink a car underground and make it disappear, when wanted, by pressing a button, is the latest contribution to the garbage problem. Many even of the post-war houses in London, have not sufficient space to erect a garage, and "building-line" regulations prevent structures being put up in the front garden.

The new invention overcomes these difficulties. A concrete pit is sunk in the desired position, and machinery is installed for raising or lowering a platform carrying the motor car. A canopy is fitted to the platform, so that when it is sunk to the level of the ground it forms a weather-proof shelter for the garage. The device, it is claimed, is both burglar-proof and foolproof, the machinery being operated from inside the house by simple control push buttons.

Explanations and Comments

Obedience To Civil Authority A Christian Duty, verses 1-7.—"It is lawful to give tribute to Caesar, or not?" was the burning question the Pharisees brought to Jesus, and you recall how He answered, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." A great part of the Jews were always questioning the lawfulness of paying taxes and of recognizing the authority of the Roman Government. The Jews of Rome had been especially turbulent, and of this Paul must have heard many accounts from Priscilla and Aquila, who had been forced to leave Rome on account of the trouble. In writing this epistle, therefore, Paul was naturally led to take up the question of the Christian's relation to the civil authority.

"Let every soul be in subjection to the governing authorities, for the rulers are the ministers of God, the rulers who are counseled, and then by means of the sword, they are the avengers of God, and the negative of the other positive, he asserted that the fact of the authority being established, is proof of its being of God."

"Pretty near got 'im" that time, Donnie!" cried Andy excitedly. "I've got an get 'im to fit 'is jaw off 'is shoulder, and in your right." Andy's hands were shaking with excitement, while Donnie was cold and collected.

"Let me go after him, Andy," he begged. "I can whip him at his own game."

"No, no!" admonished Andy, "keep on as you are. Don't try to swap punches with 'im!"

Garrieau's seconds were working over him feverishly. Pursell leaned over the heavily-breathing champion, his evil face pale with apprehension.

"What'd I tell yer?" he exclaimed. "They've stuck a ring on in us; dat feller ain't no amachoo! If he beats yer we both huns! Foul him dis round, for de..." he finished with a savage oath.

At the beginning of the third round Garrieau charged his champion adversary like a bull. Donnie easily side-stepped him and he plunged into the ropes. As he rebounded, Donnie landed a left and landed solidly away without reprieve.

"You can't see my foot!" roared, snarled the champion with a look of Simian ferocity. "But I'll get you, you—!" There followed a burst of wild cursing. He tried to rush Donnie to the ropes, feinted for the wind, and let loose a powerful right for the jaw. Paying no attention to the faint, Donnie ducked the blow and countering, shot his left to his opponent's mid-section. The champion grunted, fell into clinch, and hung on grimly. The referee piped.

What Will You Do

When your Children Cry for It

"There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night, any find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhoea checked. A vegetable product, a baby remedy made for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have over head doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, restless night. It is always ready always safe to use in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night, that baby comes fretful, or restless. Castoria will soothe more than it is today. Every drugist has it."

"Are you strong enough, Donnie?" Donnie's eyes held a dull glow. "Yes!" he replied.

Andy put his arm as the gong rang. "Give 'im 'ell, Donnie!" And then added reverently: "Any God got 'im strength!"

Donnie stood from his corner as though thrown from a catapult to meet Garrieau before he was fairly out of his chair. The spectators held their breath. Was this the man who a minute before had walked stinging and beaten to his knees? When the referee piped the fighters apart after a fierce mistle in the champion's corner, a puffed eye and a bloody face showed that Garrieau had absorbed severe punishment. Donnie was everywhere, dancing in for a fierce rally and out again, always without a return.

The arena fairly rocked to the cheers of the crowd as Donnie stood in the centre of the ring and exchanged punches with the champion. Head to head they stood while Donnie's arms worked with such lightning speed that the champion's blows were smothered. And, marvel or not, the champion was giving ground. The pursued had become pursuer. The tide had turned and with his arms wound about his face the champion retreated. As he essayed a lunge, Donnie snatched his face before he could again cover up. Following relentlessly, Donnie penetrated his opponent's guard with rights and lefts until the champion's face was a smear of red.

A bedlam of sound came from the audience as they stood on their seats and roared their admiration for the challenger's wonderful exhibition. Andy, his face set, his eyes bulging and clung to the corner of the ring. Garrieau drove heavily at his elusive foe and missed. The impetuous swung him to one side. For an instant his chin was without the protecting shield of his shoulder. With a bewilderingly swift move Donnie stepped forward, pivoted on his toes, and with the full weight of his potent young body behind it, he whipped his right to the champion's unprotected jaw. Pop! Garrieau fell upon his face and rolled to his knees.

Donnie walked to his corner, thrust his gloved hands toward Andy, who stood as though paralyzed, and said: "Take them off, Andy." His voice was audible throughout the arena. The referee, who had seen the fight, raised his arm aloft in token of victory.

With a roar the crowd came to its senses to realize that the fight was over. Pandemonium broke loose. A struggling mass of humanity surged into the ring and men were seen shaking hands with the new champion Garrieau, the possessor of the "punch" they had so much admired.

With much difficulty Donnie and his friends forced their way through the cheering throng to the dressing room. Weak and tired, Donnie lay on a cot, while his handlers gently massaged his sore body. Andy moved to the cot and stood looking down at his prize.

Donnie opened his eyes. "Hello, Andy," he smiled weakly.

"Hello, Donnie," said Andy huskily as he put his hand to his forehead. Donnie's hand stole out to meet the warm clasp of his friend.

"Some little fight," said Andy, summing up a smile.

"Not bad," agreed Donnie. Gills pulled his hat brim down over his eyes to hide his emotion.

"I've a good mind to go out and give that brute another licking," he growled.

One of the promoters thrust his head through the door. "Come and get your dough!" he shouted.

"Strike me lucky!" returned Andy. "Those words have a pleasant sound."

SUMMER COMPLAINT

Nearly Lost Her Little Girl

Mr. Theodore Rivett, Anthony, Ont., writes that his little girl, who was suffering from summer complaint, this became very ill and weak, had no appetite, and could hardly walk across the room.

"I was advised to get a bottle of D'FOWLER'S WILD STRAWBERRY."

and after she had taken a few doses she was relieved.

"I also found it a grand remedy for colic, and would not be without a bottle of it in the house for anything."

It has been on the market for over 50 years; put up only by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Badminton players find a drink of hot tea of great benefit after a strenuous bout. In leading Badminton clubs of Canada, Red Rose Tea is a great favorite. No other tea offers such brisk, zesty flavor and high quality. Put up only in bright, clean aluminum packages.

He picked up a small handbag and left the room. In a few moments he returned, his face beaming. He tapped the satchel. "Chuck full," he said happily.

At the gymnasium they gathered in Andy's room, and for the first time Donnie told them of the attempted "frame-up" proposed by Garrieau's manager, Douglas strode across the room and gripped Donnie's hand. Not a word was uttered by anyone, but the silence was more eloquent than speech.

They were all in a hazy mood after the prolonged strain of the day. Andy was in particularly high spirits. "Gentlemen," he began grandly, "I've been thinking of you the while 'ere a most wonderful little 'andbag. All it 'ad in it this mornin' was a dirty collar and a shirt stov. 'Now, making a dramatic gesture, 'It's the bloomie' from my pienty!" He turned the satchel upside down and a mass of bills, coins and cheques fell upon the table.

"Ere, Gills," cried Andy, as he selected a bill, "will you go out and get some change, and when you come, bring ginger ale for Donnie. 'Is manager' drink 'is share of the loot."

Andy sorted the money into piles and sat quietly counting for a few minutes. "Fifteen hundred and a few odd dollars," he announced.

"What!" ejaculated Donnie. He was astounded. He had given the size of the purse little thought. "I had no idea it would be so much," he said in a surprised tone.

"Oh, the boxin' gyme is a great gyme," remarked Douglas, "but after seeing that but today I'm going to take up tidbits instead; it's no more for me."

When the big man returned with the wine Donnie turned to Douglas. "It seems that you and Gills are the best of friends."

"Why, yes, Jack's been one of Dad's right-hand men for—how long, I don't know."

"About ten years," replied Gills.

"And I'm equally interested to know how you and Jack have got over each other so well," said Douglas curiously.

"I met Donnie on the train comin' out," answered Gills quickly.

"Come on, boys," cried Andy, "we'll drink to the new champ—'to Donnie's health.' Andy held his glass aloft. "Boys, I can't make much of a speech, as I've only 'ad one drink. Stand up while we drink to our Donnie. I know that 'e's got to leave me, and that 'e's got to give up the boxin' gyme. I know that 'e's not in the 'ole of a piece of a man like I'm. But when I know that 'e's puttin' into this fight to 'elp a poor little bloke like me out of an 'ole, I'm proud, boys, I'm proud! I've seen many a fight, and I've seen many a gyme man. But strike me blind if Donnie didn't in this teach me something about sheer grit. When 'e came stumblin' to me at the end of that—that third round—I stopped. 'You know what 'appened,' he continued in a husky voice. 'I ask nobbin' 'bout 'is 'ave 'im for me pal. 'Ere's to the gyme man that ever stepped in lose-leather: 'Ere's 'im 'im! Andy turned away quickly to light a cigarette. His eyes were moist. The room was silent.

Donnie was deeply moved by his little friend's show of feeling. Douglas broke the silence. "You got back to the Coast just in time. Jack?"

"How's that?"

"Dad has started on the biggest job he's tackled yet."

"What is it?"

"Do you remember the big tract of timber that he bought in the Cheakamus Valley?"

"Yes, he bought on my advice," answered Gills.

"Well, he's going to run a railroad in and build sawmills, and saw the logs right on the spot instead of shipping them to the Coast."

"Good!" said Gills heartily. "There's a wonderful stand of timber in that valley."

"But here's the best part of it," Douglas went on eagerly. "Dad's going to send you in to cruise the timber around Summit Lake, and I'm to go with you. It's a wonderful trip. I walk up there last summer. He turned to Donnie. "Will you go with us?"

"I'll be glad to," assented Donnie.

"Good!" cried Douglas. "It will be fine camping with you and Jack."

Little Andy sat patiently listening to this lively conversation, in which he had been completely ignored. He could contain himself no longer.

"I say," he blurted, "am I much a blinkin' deaf that you've forgotten that I'm in this 'ere crowd? I ain't me 'ad above the t'able? There's the 'ell to I get off on this 'ere bloomie' picnic, I ask you?"

One look into the Australian's seriously comic face with his heavy eyebrows wagging up and down set Douglas into paroxysms of laughter. "Andy," he declared, "I'm going to take you away, even if we have to mark you 'excess baggage.' Can you cook?"

A GREAT PUZZLE TO CAREFUL PARENTS

One of the greatest puzzles to the careful parent is to know just what medicine to give the little ones. When the child falls ill with griping pains is seized with cold or fever, refuses food or sleep, he has taken a puzzle when he cries a great deal and cannot get the sleep so necessary to the growing child. The parent is in quandary. What is to be done on such occasions? As often as not the child is not a suitable medicine in the house, and the puzzle is to give him to set him right quickly.

It is to meet such emergencies that Baby's Own Tablets were designed. These pleasant little Tablets quickly relieve, break up colds, relieve constipation and indigestion and quickly relieve pain. They quiet the nervous and irritable child, restore sleep. They are guaranteed to be harmless and safe for even the youngest and most delicate baby.

Scientist Makes a Strange Discovery

Convicted That Human Body Has Radio Tuning Point

C. R. England, a research scientist of the Bell Telephone laboratories, New York, says that after extensive experiments he was convinced of the soundness of his theory that the human body has a radio tuning point.

The tuning point of his body, he said, was 3.65 metres and was discovered accidentally while he was working on radio oscillators producing very short wave lengths, England explained.

Starting with five metres, he said he worked downward gradually and encountered difficulties when he went below four metres. A search for the cause of the trouble, his body was working as a tuned circuit, he said.

of grain have been less seriously reduced than in other sections, although completion of threshing has been delayed by broken weather during the past week. Grain is being marketed rapidly and at a number of country points difficulty is reported in securing elevator accommodation.

Good progress is being made with the sugar beet harvest in the south and a fairly good yield of beets with a high sugar content is reported.

Due to the favorable fall, a larger acreage than usual has been plowed in readiness for the following season's crop. This is particularly true in the northern half of the province.

of the damage had been made, one was left wondering how it had ever been controlled. It is certain, that the promptness of Mr. Gibson in turning in the alarm, and the quick arrival of the chemical outfit, was the deciding factor. Another minute or two, and the blaze would have been of such magnitude that the chemical engine would have been inadequate to combat it.

Auto Is Self Steering

The heading of this article is not intended to mislead. The high power sedan pictured above is all of that and more as the "steering wheel" acts only as a front wheel brake, and all four wheels are fixed. Perhaps the most remarkable fact in connection with this handsome automobile is that it was turned out, just as it appears, from the Canadian Pacific locomotive works at Angus. There you have it! The wheels are flanged, with rubber insulation between the steel tires. Supplementary lights comply with railway regulations. There are staffs for the regulation flags, a powerful horn—and a bumper. Canadian Pacific engineers will use this car for inspection purposes.
